

Department of Family Medicine

Physicians - Open Positions

The Boston University Department of Family Medicine has several faculty positions available related to its clinical programs. Positions can be tailored to involve the full spectrum of family practice including OB and care of young families, and the care of the elderly and frail elderly (including in community and nursing home settings). Faculty practice locations include community health centers, the department's medical center practice, and community hospital locations. We also seek family physicians interested in hospital medicine and in developing an innovative program combining hospitalist approaches with intensive follow-up of patients in community settings. Faculty maintain teaching involvement with the department's residency and medical school curriculum, and opportunity for involvement in innovative care projects. We are committed to including more women and minority physicians in our faculty, and particularly seek those with additional language skills, especially Spanish. Send CV to Kevin Casey, Administrator, B.U. Department of Family Medicine, 1 Boston Medical Center Place, Dowling 5, Boston, MA. 02118; or e-mail (preferred) at: Kevin.Casey@bmc.org; or Fax: 617-414-3345.

While the following positions are available, the roles involved in them may be creatively combined, in keeping with an applicant's career aspirations:
