Traditional, Complementary and Alternative Medicine and Cancer Care

An International Analysis of Grassroots Integration

Philip Tovey and John Chatwin, both at the University of Leeds, UK and Alex Broom, University of Queensland, Australia

Drawing on comparative fieldwork in the UK, Pakistan and Australia, this book provides the first systematic assessment of pathways and access to CAM and how it is used in health practice and by individuals with cancer.

Giving fresh and invaluable insights into how differing health and societal structures influence the use of complementary and alternative medicine, the book explores:

- the empirical, theoretical, and policy context for the study of CAM/TM and cancer
- the history and character of the eight support groups in which fieldwork took place in the UK, Australia and Pakistan
- the nature and structure of patient support groups' history, affiliation and evolution
- how groups function on a day-to-day basis
- the extent to which what is being offered in these CAM-oriented groups is in any way innovative and challenging to the therapeutic and organizational mainstream
- the value of sociological work in the field which is not tied to immediate and narrow policy objectives.

This is an essential resource for those studying complementary and alternative medicine sociologically, to those involved in the provision of cancer care on a day-to-day basis, and to those looking to establish a more informed evidence-based policy.

Complementary and Alternative Medicine in Nursing and Midwifery

Edited by Jon Adams, University of Queensland, Australia and Philip Tovey, University of Leeds, UK

This book explores the historical, social, political and cultural facets of integration between CAM and nursing and midwifery. It examines the ever-expanding integration in relation to:

- the role and conceptualization of the patient
- the role and responsibilities of different professional health care providers such as nurses, midwives, alternative therapists
- the future provision and approach of nursing and midwifery practice
- the challenges and opportunities currently facing health care systems as a result of integration.

This innovative book provides the first critical overview of this important field of health research. It is important reading for medical sociologists, nurses and other health professionals - as well as students in these areas - with an interest in complementary and alternative medicine.

Researching Complementary and Alternative Medicine

Edited by Jon Adams, University of Queensland, Australia

Researching Complementary and Alternative Medicine provides a valuable and timely resource for those looking to understand, initiate and expand CAM research.

This collection brings together leading international CAM researchers with backgrounds and expertise in a variety of areas including health social science, qualitative methodology, general practice, health services research and public health. Drawing upon their own research work and experience, the contributors explain and review core methods and research issues pertinent to contemporary CAM and its future development. Topics discussed include:

- the use and limitation of evidence in CAM research
- the issues facing practitioners (GPs, therapists, nurses, etc) who wish to conduct research
- how and why qualitative methods should be combined alongside quantitative methods to help explore CAM
- how the randomised control trial (RCT) method relates to CAM
- the future direction of CAM research in terms of public health and policy-related agendas.

Researching Complementary and Alternative Medicine is essential reading for students, academics and researchers in CAM, health studies, medicine, nursing, medical sociology and public health. It will also appeal to CAM and allied health practitioners.

Using Complementary and Alternative Medicine

Exploring the Experiences of Patients and Professionals

Edited by Alex Broom, University of Queensland, Australia and Philip Tovey, University of Leeds, UK

Drawing on extensive fieldwork in the UK, this book includes over 120 interviews with patients and professionals, plus innovative 'diary' data which, for the first time, provides access to the experiences of CAM users. It gives a systematic analysis of issues such as:

- the development of patient preferences and influences on decision making
- expectations of CAM, and interpretations of 'success'
- the role of varying forms of evidence
- the role of social inequality and inter-professional conflicts in mediating and shaping patients' experiences of cancer and their use of CAMs
- concepts of science and rationality.

Essential reading for students and researchers of medical sociology, complementary and alternative medicine and cancer, the book will also be of use to medical and health professionals, and policy-makers with an interest in complementary and alternative medicine.

2nd Edition

Textbook of Complementary and Alternative Medicine

Edited by Chun-Su Yuan, Tang Center for Herbal Medicine, University of Chicago, USA, Eric J. Bieber, Geisinger Health System, Pennsylvania, USA and Brent A. Bauer, Mayo Clinic Complementary & Alternative Medicine, Minnesota, USA

Based on a successful course at the Pritzker School of Medicine of the University of Chicago, this comprehensive text provides all practitioners, physicians and allied health workers with a wide-ranging understanding of what CAM can offer, and has detailed chapters on therapies such as herbal medicine, meditation, acupuncture and osteopathy. Throughout, the content is contemporary, evidence-based and highly referenced.

Comprising two sections - commonly used therapies and therapies for common medical conditions - the book has been thoroughly revised and updated since the publication of the first edition, with over forty new and expanded chapters. A major section on common medical disorders, with details of which CAM therapies may be most appropriate in their treatment, makes this an outstanding reference for medical students through to physicians interested in CAM methods and in integrating CAM into their everyday practice.

Perspectives on Complementary and Alternative Medicine: A Reader

Edited by Geraldine Lee Treweek, Tom Heller, Julie Stone, Hilary MacQueen and Jeanne Katz

This Reader presents a lively and engaging collection of classic, controversial and new readings on CAM and covers issues including:

- changes in the way CAM is developing and being delivered
- holism and what this concept means to CAM practice
- changes in consumption and the health consumer that have led to increased interest in CAM

- the safety and effectiveness of CAM treatments
- how integration is being achieved in contemporary society.

The text provides insight into many of the current and complex issues surrounding CAM, and will appeal to everyone who is concerned with or who has an interest in complementary and alternative healthcare.

Perspectives on Complementary and Alternative Medicine

Edited by Tom Heller, Geraldine Lee-Treweek, Jeanne Katz, Julie Stone and Sue Spurr

This book explores the challenging issues associated with complementary and alternative medicine in the context of the social, political and cultural influences that shape people's health.

Divided clearly into three sections, this book:

- sets out the general context of social change, consumption and debate around the rise of public interest in CAM
- argues for and against different classifications of CAM
- critically assesses the importance of ethics and values to CAM practice and how these inform what practitioners do
- focuses on the question of what people want, the changing and contested nature of health, and the nature of personal and social factors associated with the use of CAM, leading to a focus on 'therapeutic relationships'
- examines the diversity of settings in which CAM takes place and the social, political and economic milieu in which CAM is provided and used.
